THE CHANGING SENATE

Several New Members to Be Elected.

The Republican Majority, However, Not Likely to Be Reduced—Alger Retires Several After His Seat—Depew May Resign.

There is not the slightest possibility of this fall election materially reducing the republican majority in the United States Senate, but it will not be a surprise if the personnel of the body is considerably changed, says the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript. The 39 senators whose terms will expire the third of next March are Russell A. Alger of Michigan, J. Frank Allen of Delaware, Augustus O. B. Allen of Georgia, Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, J. W. Benson of Kansas, James H. Barry of Arkansas, Joseph C. Blackburn of Kentucky, Henry B. Burdick of New Hampshire, Edward W. Carrigan of Tennessee, William A. Clark of Montana, W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, Shelby M. Cullum of Illinois, Jonathan P. Dolliver of Iowa, John P. Dryden of New Jersey, Fred T. Dubois of Idaho, Stephen H. Elkins of West Virginia, Marjory J. Foster of Louisiana, William B. Frye of Maine, Robert J. Gamble of South Dakota, John M. Gurnea of Oregon, Anselm J. McLaurin of Mississippi, Thomas S. Martin of Virginia, Joseph H. Millard of Nebraska, John T. Morgan of Alabama, Oscar Nelson of Minnesota, Thomas N. Patterson of Colorado, Rufus M. Smith of North Carolina, Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, Francis E. Warren of Wyoming and George P. Wetmore of Rhode Island.

General Alger is not a candidate for re-election. He so announced several months ago and five or six more are after the seat. Even after the Legislature is chosen it will not be possible to place the winter with so many candidates in the race. Mr. Alger retires on account of advanced age and poor health. There is nothing in the Michigan situation at this time to indicate other than that his successor will be a republican.

J. Frank Allen will probably come back from Delaware. His wing of the party—the anti-federal faction—is now in control and it does not look as if Allen could begin his last ground between now and the date of the senatorial election. But Delaware politics is so uncertain that it is never safe to predict what will happen. Senator Benson, who is one of the ablest men the South has in public life, will not meet with any opposition.

It is recently things looked bright for Senator Bailey of Texas. At his request, his name was on the ballot at the recent State primary and he was almost unanimously endorsed for re-election. But since that vote was taken charges concerning the senator with the Standard Oil company as an attorney have been made, and public sentiment in Texas has been changing. Representative Texans who are here are not certain what may happen when the Legislature meets in January. Bailey has passed through one legislative investigation as a result of the charge that he received a large fee for corporation service, and he may have to pass through another before he returns to the Senate. It should be said that the Legislature that investigated him acquitted him of any wrong doing. It seems to be a fact that Bailey has not the strong grip on his State that he once had. But Bailey is a persuasive man and the probability is that he will convince the Legislature that he is all right and will be sent back.

Berry of Arkansas and Blackburn of Kentucky submitted their names to the party last fall and lost. They will not come back. Blackburn of New Hampshire is looked for a return by the republican machine of that State. The organization with which he affiliates has been running into some rough weather this year, but it seems destined to hold together for some time yet.

Mr. Benson of Kansas, who was appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Joseph R. Burton, got here only a few days before the Legislature ended. He liked the surroundings, and is anxious to come back. Several other Kansas citizens covet the seat, and it is not at all certain that Mr. Benson's wish will be granted. Edward Carnahan of Tennessee will not return. The citizens of that State at their primary voted to send "Fiddling Bob" Taylor.

Senator Clark of Montana, the man with the most money that he knows what to do with, will probably be left at home. His State has been returning a good-sized republican majority since he was elected in 1902, and he is a democrat and the prospect is not bright for him. He never has been much of a factor in the affairs of the Senate, but the seat is a nice plaything for him and he would like to hold on to it. He still exercises a great deal of influence in Montana politics and notwithstanding the political tendency out there he might be able to secure a democratic majority in the Legislature. The present Legislature contains 15 republicans, 22 democrats and 12 fusion democrats.

Unless Massachusetts should unexpectedly come up with a democratic Legislature, W. Murray Crane, who is filling the unexpired term of the late Senator Hoar, will be sent back. He has made a splendid record in the short time he has been in the body. Cullum of Illinois has received the endorsement of his people at a State primary and so will come back. He is one of the old wheel horses and the Senate would not look natural without his face in the high center of the body. Dolliver of Iowa has apparently kept free from the political complications of his State and will be returned. Governor Cummins is credited with senatorial aspirations, but his friends say he is willing to wait for the seat occupied by William B. Allison.

In New Jersey John P. Dryden, president of one of the large insurance companies, desires re-election. Opposition to him has arisen and the leaders of that opposition declare they will carry the fight into the Legislature. Mr. Dryden is at the head of the republican machine that has had control of the party in the State for a good many years, and the demand from those who oppose him is for a new deal. The democrats have no thought of electing a man and so the successor to Dryden will be a republican. Fred T. Dubois, democrat of Idaho, desires to be returned, but he has incurred the ill will of the Mormon Church by purchasing Senator Shoup, and even if the democrats should have the Legislature, which seems doubtful, he may not be sent back. Idaho, like all the Mountain States of the West, has been returning a republican majority, since Roosevelt became the party leader, and the impression is that it will stay in the republican column this year. The present Legislature is republican on joint ballot by a majority of 30. So it looks as if the republicans would gain a senator here as well as in Montana.

There was any amount of talk about defeating Stephen H. Elkins of West Virginia for re-election, but it is no longer heard. He has been busy with his fences for the last six months, and from all accounts he will not meet with any opposition when his Legislature meets in January. He is one of the most persuasive as well as one of the richest men in public life. Between elections his constituents become unruly, but somehow he has the knack of getting them in line when their votes are needed. The democrats have ceased to hope to carry the State. Elkins and natural gas have made it safely republican.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK

Forster of Louisiana, Frye of Maine, Gamble of South Dakota, Gurnea of Oregon, McLaurin of Mississippi and Martin of Virginia are all slated to come back. Millard of Nebraska may be left at home. Opposition to him has arisen among the people, and it is said that the railroad industry which was at one time behind him is not disposed to support him for re-election. Nebraska has not been in the habit of keeping its senators here for long periods, and so it is not surprising to hear that someone else is likely to occupy the seat Mr. Millard now claims.

Alabama has done the gracious thing by Senator Morgan, who will have served 30 years the third of March. It proposes to re-elect him and keep him in the Senate as long as he lives. Realizing that he can hardly live the term out, it has designated Mr. Bankhead, now a member of the House of Representatives, as a substitute candidate, with the understanding that when Mr. Morgan dies Bankhead will be appointed to the vacancy by the governor. Minnesota will return Senator Nelson, and it will honor itself by doing it. He is one of the most valuable men to the body.

Thomas M. Patterson will hardly be sent back by Colorado. Apparently the only chance for him to get back is to turn republican—and persons who know him best would not be surprised to hear that he is seeking re-election as a Roosevelt republican. He was elected in 1902 as a democrat, but during the last session he was half disposed to desert his party. He frankly admits that he has run the gauntlet of political parties in his time. When populism was rampant he was on the front seat of the band wagon. All the advice from Colorado indicate that the next Legislature will be republican. The republicans have a majority of four on joint ballot.

"Rather one glance at him in his native fields, in all of his pride and beauty, than a whole hour in viewing his mangled carcass, and as a member of the original club that first introduced these noble animals to our forests, I desire to enter a protest against this unmanly slaughter. There is plenty of room for several times their present number, without causing any material damage that would to any appreciable extent offset the charms and peculiar attractions which their presence gives our regions."

The four remaining senators in the list of 30—Simmons of North Carolina, Tillman of South Carolina, Warren of Wyoming, and Wetmore of Rhode Island—are all looked for to return, although Wetmore is meeting some strong opposition. There was a little uprising against Tillman, but he went into his State after Congress adjourned, and at least 30 days had his fences in such good condition that he was able to go on the Chautauque platform in the North at $200 a night.

It may be that there will be some vacancies in addition to those caused by the expiration of the terms of 30 senators. Many New York republicans expect Senator Depew to resign this fall. They expected him to get out last winter. His health has not improved, and his friends here say they do not expect him to reappear in the Senate. He is not likely to take any step until the result of the State election is known. If the democrats shall capture the State he will not retire, for to do so would enable the democrats to name his successor. Senator Platt's term expires March 3, 1907. His is the next President Roosevelt hopes to occupy.

UNMANAGEABLE CAR.

Slipped Down Colchester Avenue Hill and around the Curves.

A heavily loaded truck car on the hill line of the Burlington Traction company became unmanageable near Green Mount cemetery early Saturday evening and slipped down the hill to Barrett street, where it was brought to a stop before making the final descent to the Winoski bridge. The passengers were thrown into a panic and the wildest excitement prevailed for a few minutes. Many were severely shaken up, but few were seriously injured. Miss Katherine Farrell of Winoski suffered most from the accident.

OF NEWS OF VERMONT

More Important Events Grouped for Free Press Readers—H. A. Norwood Given $1,000 Bail for Alleged Larceny.

Sheriff A. H. Thompson and George B. Albee of Bellows Falls returned from their trip to California Thursday evening. They were accompanied by E. A. Norwood of Redlands, Cal., who was wanted in Windham county to answer to an indictment of the grand jury charging him with the larceny of funds belonging to the estate of the late Hannah W. Towns. It will be remembered that Mr. Norwood was at one time guardian for Mrs. Towns. After her death G. A. Weston was appointed administrator of the estate. Mr. Norwood neglected to turn the funds in his hands over to the administrator, hence the proceedings in county court. The amount due the estate was about $12,000. Mr. Norwood brought a draft with him sufficient to cover all claims against him which was turned over to the Towns estate. Saturday afternoon a hearing on the question of bail in the criminal charge of larceny was held in Brattleboro before P. K. Pier, associate judge of the county court. Atorney-General Fitts appearing for the State and H. D. Ryder for Mr. Norwood. Bail for the appearance at the April term of court was fixed at $1,000 and was furnished by H. D. Ryder, M. H. Ray, and A. L. Field. Mr. Norwood was then taken to the jail at Newbury, and went through the usual process of being committed and having the lock turned before he was officially released. Mr. Norwood at once joined Mrs. Norwood in Winchester, N. H., where she was called a short time ago by the death of her mother. Both expect to be in Bellows Falls again before returning to California.

WORKMAN CAUGHT IN MACHINERY.

Eugene H. Kennedy was seriously injured at Chelsea Wednesday morning, being caught between the machinery of a gasoline engine which he had just started in his wheelwright shop and under mill. A deep gash was cut in the side of his head, and nearly all his clothing was torn off. No bones were broken but he is badly bruised. Unless there is a serious spinal injury it is probable that he will recover, although his condition is known for twenty-four hours. Dr. E. H. Godfrey was summoned and gave him medical aid.

DEATH OF G. F. FLANDERS.

George F. Flanders, one of the best known citizens of White River Junction, was found dead about ten o'clock Wednesday morning, sitting in a chair by a window in his residence on Gates street. He having been troubled with that disease for some time. Mr. Flanders had been employed for many years as a foreman in G. W. Smith & Son's bakery, which position he resigned recently to become manager of the Union passenger restaurant cafe. He was prominent in the Masonic order, having filled the chairs of the grand bodies, was a Knight Templar and had received the 32nd degree.

SLATE MILL BURNED.

Fire of unknown origin Wednesday night destroyed the mill and boiler house at the John Jones slate quarry in Castleton, estimating a loss of $3,000 to $4,000; partially insured, and throwing out of employment temporarily the 30 men employed by the concern. The men had quit work at five o'clock, and at 7:30 o'clock a Mr. C. H. King, who lives nearby, discovered that the buildings were on fire. The fire had gained such headway that it could not be checked and the structures were soon destroyed. The loss of the mill makes it practically impossible to operate the quarry until a temporary structure is erected and machinery is put in.

HOPE FOR ESSEX JUNCTION.

Reports that have gained circulation as to the immediate building of a new station at Essex Junction by the Central Vermont Railway company are premature. The stations at Richmond and Highgate Springs have been recently burned and will receive first attention. It is authoritatively stated, however, that a new station will be built at Essex Junction at no remote date and the entire yard system will be rearranged. No date has as yet been set for the beginning of this work. This information comes from a source which cannot be questioned. The new station will stand within the "Y" so that the trains going in the various directions will pass on either side of the station and thus avoid the confusion of a number of trains in a train shed as now.

VERMONT DEER HUNTERS GET LARGE NUMBER OF BEARS.

Edward Woods of Wilmington and Ralph Parsons of Brattleboro drove in from Stratton Wednesday morning with three dead bears in their wagon. They killed the bears Tuesday, just before dark, setting three out of four of which they caught sight. One of the animals was a big 300-pound female and the others were cubs. Woods and Parsons reported that their camp, comprising four other hunters, had killed one deer and were out on the fresh tracks of two or three more when they left on Wednesday morning.

Seven deer have been killed in Lincoln and Clarence Baslow killed two bears while hunting dead Thursday.

RUTLAND MAN SHOT A BEAR.

A 250-pound black bear was killed Thursday by T. W. Walsh of West Rutland and brought to Rutland Friday. Walsh was walking along an old wood road between Stockbridge and Rochester, when he heard a shot fired a short distance away by George Chaffee, Jr. He started to run in the direction from which the sound of the shot came and then heard a second shot fired from the hill. He fired at the leader, but missed and scattered the animals. He gave chase to the leader and, after firing four more shots, saw the great beast drop dead. The other bears had disappeared in the mean time. Chaffee shot a large buck within a few minutes from the time he fired at the bear.

INTERESTING HISTORY. ADDITIONAL FACTS.

Most of the Chittenden County Towns Were Chartered in 1793.

The county of Chittenden, State of Vermont, was incorporated by act of the Legislature, October 22, 1793. It is bounded in said act as follows: "On the north side by the counties of Grand Isle, Franklin and Lamoille; south by the county of Addison; east by Lamoille and Washington; and west by the west line of the State" which includes "so much of Lake Champlain as lies in the State west of the towns in said county adjoining the lake and not included within the limits of Grand Isle."

Chittenden county includes 16 towns and two gorges, Buell's gorge and Avery's gorge. The names of the towns and the dates when chartered are as follows: Brattleboro, chartered June 3, 1793. Burlington, June 3, 1793. Charlotte, June 24, 1793. Colchester, June 7, 1793. Essex, June 7, 1793. Hinesburgh, June 7, 1793. Underhill, June 1793. Jericho, June 7, 1793. Milton, June 8, 1793. Shelburne, August 18, 1793. St. George, August 18, 1793. Tipton, June 8, 1793. Westford, 1793. Williston, June 7, 1793.

South Burlington was formerly included in Burlington and was incorporated by act of the Legislature in 1861 as a separate town, when Burlington was made a city. Richmond never had a charter like other towns, but was incorporated by act of the Legislature in 1794. Most of the towns were organized soon after receiving their charters, but the exact date of the organization of most of them is not a matter of record.

Preparations Begun to Clear Crab Island and Erect Wharf.

Preparations have been begun for the spending of the $30,000 appropriation made by the last Congress to make Crab Island a national park. The island is to be entirely cleared of underbrush and the poison ivy which is profuse upon it, and all down timber and dead trees are to be removed. After the ground has been cleared Canadian blue grass seed will be sown. A wharf is to be built on the west side of the island.

Bids for the above work have been opened at the office of the constructing quartermaster at Plattsburgh barracks. There were three bidders for the work: W. G. Wilcox, J. J. Fitzpatrick and Percival Butler, all of Plattsburgh. Lieut. Elmore, constructing quartermaster, will forward the bids to the war department at Washington.

A keeper's lodge, the plans for which are now in preparation, will be constructed near the wharf. The balance of the appropriation, after paying for this building, clearing the island and erecting the wharf, will be used for the erection of a monument in memory of the fallen heroes who are buried on the island.
